Beyond Naukri, Info Edge finds new growth engine

₹41,300 crore startup portfolio emerges as key value driver

RAM PRASAD SAHU
Mumbai, 23 June

In a weak market, the stock of Info Edge (India) was the top gainer in the BSE 100 index, rising 2.8 per cent on Tuesday. In comparison, the BSE 100 and the Sensex were down 1.6 per cent each. The gains for the company, which runs multiple online classified platforms, including recruitment site Naukri.com, came after it posted an update on its investment portfolio in startups. The investments are in the artificial intelligence (AI), deep-tech, and consumer technology (tech) sectors, through its alternative investment funds.

Since 2007, the company has made investments of ₹4,900 crore across 135 startups across sectors. This is now valued at ₹41,300 crore as of March this year, translating into about 8.4x the invested capital and a 33 per cent rate of return.

Among the key segments, the company has invested ₹610 crore across 28 AI startups, and the portfolio is valued at ₹1,270 crore, with a 2.1x return and a 33 per cent rate of return. Other investments include ₹460 crore in 30 deep-tech startups. Consumer tech and consumer AI are the largest contributors to portfolio value, with ₹2,760 crore invested across 45 companies. The portfolio is valued at ₹37,200 crore, translating into a 34 per cent return and a 13.5x gain. The company indicated that AI, deep-tech, and consumer tech would be the key drivers of future value creation.

ation multiple to reflect near-term risks from AI-led disruption, a potential slowdown in revenue growth, driven by softer hiring trends, slower billings momentum, and ongoing headwinds in segments such as education (impact of AI on traffic) and real estate, which could weigh on revenue visibility.

Revenues of the real estate segment 99acres grew 21.2 per cent Y-o-Y due to the reversal of warranty-related provisions amounting to ₹20 crore, even as billings growth remained muted at 1.9 per cent. The company remains confident of market share gains, which will aid the recovery in billings growth. Billings in the education portal (Shiksha) declined 12.9 per cent Y-o-Y as AI-related impact was visible from AI-driven search changes (Google AI summaries and AI bots). Jeevansathi revenue was up 18.8 per cent Y-o-Y, and billings were up 21 per cent Y-o-Y.

Nuvama Research expects moderate billings growth to translate into lower revenue growth with a lag, while growth in non-recruitment businesses shall partially offset the moderation. Margins are likely to remain stable at current levels. The brokerage has tweaked 2026-27 and 2027-28 earnings lower by a tad, factoring in lower growth. The brokerage has, however, retained a "buy" rating due to attractive valuations, with a revised target price of ₹1,320, down from the earlier ₹1,390.

ary-March (Q4) of 2025-26 (FY26) were up 9.5 per cent compared to the third quarter (October-December/Q3) of FY26 (growth of 11 per cent and the historical average of 14-15 per cent. Sectors such as technology, IT services, and business process management grew 6 per cent year-on-year (Y-o-Y). The company indicated that the hiring environment remains subdued as companies continue to adopt a cautious stance amid economic and geopolitical uncertainties. However, demand for AI and machine learning-related hiring remains healthy.

Given the headwinds in the recruitment space, most brokerages have either reduced their target prices or maintained a "reduce"/"sell" rating on the stock. Mirae Asset Sharekhan Research has trimmed its price target and valu-

Life cycle funds: Is this new category right for you?

SANJAY KUMAR SINGH

Zerodha Mutual Fund has launched two life cycle funds maturing in 2036 and 2041, becoming the first fund house to introduce these schemes after the Securities and Exchange Board of India (Sebi) created this category in February 2026. It plans to launch two more life cycle funds, maturing in 2046 and 2051, soon. ICICI Prudential Asset Management Company (AMC) has also filed with Sebi for the launch of three life cycle funds maturing in 2031, 2036 and 2041.

What are life cycle funds?
Life cycle funds mature in a specific target year, enabling investors to achieve long-term financial goals within a defined time horizon. "They invest across multiple assets, including equity, debt and commodities such as gold and silver," says Vishal Jain, chief executive officer (CEO), Zerodha Fund House.

A predefined glide path is a key feature. "In the earlier years, the fund keeps the allocation more growth-oriented. As the target year approaches, it shifts the portfolio systematically towards a more conservative allocation," says Jain. He adds that the transition does not require any action from the investor.

Unlike the life cycle funds in the National Pension System (NPS), the glide path in these funds is not linked to the investor's age, but to years of investment.

What investor problems do they solve?
Most investors find it difficult to align their asset allocation with their goal over many years. "The shift by these funds towards safer assets controls downside risk closer to the goal," says Vishal Dhawan, founder and CEO, Plan Ahead Wealth Advisors.

Life cycle funds remove the dilemma of which assets to invest in by offering exposure to multiple assets.

Many investors do not book profits in an asset class that has done well for fear of missing out on short-term gains. "They may remain in aggressive assets for too long, even when they need the money soon," says Dhawan. They may also not change the portfolio for fear of tax liability.

"Life cycle funds can reduce the impact of such psychological and behavioural biases," says Dhawan.

Tax treatment is another advantage. "Asset-allocation rebalancing happens at the fund level and does not create capital gains tax implications for investors," says Sadiya Khan, head product management, Mirae Asset Sharekhan.

At maturity, the fund is taxed as an equity fund. "These funds retain an allocation to arbitrage to maintain equity taxation," says Khan.

Know the risks
A fund's portfolio construction may differ from the investor's risk tolerance. "Long-tenure investors with a very high equity risk appetite may get equity allocation of only 10 per cent," says Khan.

"These funds could carry an exit load of 1-2 per cent if the

Dos and don'ts

- Monitor performance since life cycle funds do not yet have a track record
- Allocation to a life cycle fund must align with existing assets linked to the same goal, such as EPF and NPS for retirement
- Automate investments through SIPs
- Do not invest short-term money or tactical capital in them investor exits within the first three years," says Abhishek Kumar, a registered investment adviser and founder, SahajMoney.com.

Investors have no control over their equity investment strategy. "The fund may have a large-cap bias even when the investor prefers a mid-cap-biased portfolio in the initial phase," says Khan.

These funds also remain subject to equity volatility in the early years and to interest-rate fluctuations in the later years.

Who should consider them?
Life cycle funds may suit first-time investors who need a structured approach to asset allocation. They may also work for investors who lack the time, information, or inclination to manage asset allocation and rebalancing. Investors who do not have a financial advisor may also consider them.

How to choose the right fund?
Start with the maturity date. The fund's target year should match the year in which the investor needs the money.

Examine how the fund plans to reduce allocation to riskier assets. "Assess whether that glide path matches your risk appetite," says Kumar.

Also, check the expense structure and exit load.

Study the fund's portfolio. "Examine risks on both the equity and debt sides," says Dhawan. Examine your liquidity needs. "Check whether you may need the money before the three-year exit-load period ends," says Kumar.

Form 168 vs Form 26AS: What taxpayers need to know before filing ITR

The Income Tax department has introduced Form 168, a new annual tax information statement that will consolidate tax and financial details linked to a taxpayer's PAN (Permanent account number). However, taxpayers filing returns for FY26 (AY 2026-27) should note that Form 26AS has not been replaced yet.

For the current filing cycle, taxpayers will continue using Form 26AS and Annual Information Statement (AIS) Form 168 will apply in future years under the new income tax framework. While Form 26AS mainly provides details of tax deducted at source (TDS), tax collected at source (TCS) and tax payments, Form 168 will offer a wider view of financial activity.

It will include specified financial transactions, refunds, tax demands and details of pending or completed tax proceedings.

The statement will be automatically generated by the Income Tax department using information received from employers, banks, mutual funds, and other reporting entities. Taxpayers will not need to file Form 168 separately.

- What should be done:
- Download Form 26AS and AIS before filing ITR for FY26
  - Verify ITR details with Form 16, salary slips and bank records
  - Check AIS for missing or incorrect information and submit feedback where required
  - Keep proof of investments, income sources and tax payments for reconciliation.
